Dundee Courier, Wednesday, 10th May 1848

"Stonehaven -- Important Case.-- At our Small Debt Court, on the 29th ultimo, there was a case of some importance decided by the Sheriff -- the pursuer, William Middleton, junior, wright, Dykelands, the defender John Brebner, railway contractor, Dunthill. It appears that the pursuer entered into a written agreement with the defender in November last, to serve him as wright until the term of Whitsunday next, at the rate of 18s per week. He accordingly entered into the defender's service, and continued therein until about the 12th April last, when he was dismissed by the defender upon the grounds that he refused to work an additional hour each day, without receiving any additional pay. The pursuer, therefore, raised an action of damages against the defender for breach of bargain -- when the defender pleaded that the pursuer was receiving extra wages, and therefore he was entitled to extra work; but as there were no hours of labour specified in the agreement, the Sheriff found that the defender had no case, and decerned against him for damages and expenses, which amounted to nearly £4 sterling.

Paisley and Renfrewshire Advertiser, Saturday, 22nd August 1857.

"£300,000 Acquired in 12 Years By The Late Mr. Brebner, Railway Contractor".

"The Aberdeen Herald, in referring to the Pitcaple Railway, says of its original contractor, the late Mr. Brebner-- " Not more than a dozen years ago, John Brebner was a working dyker in and about Banchory-Devenick. In this humble occupation he had a name for the stability of his jobs and the way he pushed his work along, and, some time after the Aberdeen line began to be made, he got a sub-contract. From the prices then given for this sort of labour, Mr. Brebner's contract turned out a most fortunate affair -- in fact, it made him, as the undertaking made several others of his class. Having thus had a pretty round sum at his banker's, he was able to take in hand works on a larger scale; and his success in his undertakings may be fairly guessed at when it is stated that, at the commencement of the present year, when he died, he held contracts for the whole of the Pitcaple and Turriff Railway (eighteen miles in length), the whole of the Alford Valley Railway (sixteen miles). a section of the Keith Extension, and a large section of the Inverness and Aberdeen Junction Line. The number of men he kept in employment was enormous -- no fewer than 1400 being engaged on the Pitcaple and Turriff contract alone. The value of his working stock was also, of course, great. In the one article of horses he had a comfortable fortune -- those belonging to his estate, and working on the Pitcaple line, being set down as worth not less than £4000! When, six months ago, Mr. Munro (of Kinnear and Munro, solicitors, Stonehaven) was, by order of the Court of Session, appointed judicial factor for Mr. Brebner's estate, we believe he was entrusted with one of the largest factorships ever given to a Scottish agent. In a slump, it has been named at £300,000, and we have reason to know this does not exceed the actual amount. So much for energy, had work, and another virtue -- shrewdness. John Brebner was never but three months at school, one winter he had a pound or two by him; and though his correspondence was not quite according to Johnson, he was a most expert and accurate calculator, and so orderly in his business habits that, till within a day or two of his death, it is stated, he kept a memorandum book with the most minute particulars of what he was doing himself, and how his undertakings were progressing. He worked too hard, however, body or brain could not stand it, and the humble dyker of a dozen years back died in January last, one of the wealthiest contractors in Scotland."

"A Painful Accident"

A serious and painful accident occurred on Tuesday to an old and highly respected resident of Merino (writes our correspondent). Mr. Jas. BREBNER, with his step-son, (Mr. B. ELSTON) was giving a drench to a young horse, and with the object of raising the horse's head in the air he got into his horse waggon. holding the baiter over the hand-rail. The animal on receiving the drench pulled back, and pulled Mr. BREBNER out of the dray, and he had his collarbone dislocated and broken. Dr. CROOKE was immediately called in, and did everything possible to alleviate the sufferings of the injured man. Mr. BREBNER is in his seventy-seventh year."

Only son.

Portland Guardian, 10 JAN 1949

"Obituary"

"The sudden death of James, only son of Mrs. I. PURCELL, of Portland, took place on Friday last. He was found dead in his bed at the Heidelberg Military Hospital, of which he had been and inmate for some time. Jim was a popular young fellow, and was a member of the Australian Forces during the war, when, it is believed, he contracted the illness which ultimately resulted in his untimely death. It is only a short while since his father, a veteran of two wars, passed away after much suffering, and the double blow to the wife and mother is a most distressing one. Mrs. PURCELL and her daughters have the deepest sympathy of all in their sad trial, The remains were brought to Hamilton for burial, the deceased's wife (nee Miss Gladys BREBNER) and her family being residents of that town."
