"Obituary"

"There are a great many people on the goldfields throughout Otago generally who will regret to hear that Mr. J.R. BREMNER passed away at his residence, Princes street, on Sunday morning. The deceased was in business in the Mount Ida district some 30 odd years ago."

"The firm was Bremner Bros., and an extensive business was done in Hamilton (which was then a large place) and in the Hogburn (now Naseby). The mining population in the district was at the time much larger than it is at present. As the gold became more difficult to obtain the prosperity of the residents decreased, and business men of course felt the change. About 22 years ago the firm withdrew from the district. Mr. J.G. BREMNER subsequently went to Tapanui, and the now deceased brother to Hampden, where they took up the same line of business, each on his own account, as they had carried on upon the goldfields. After some years' residence at Hampden, Mr. J.R. BREMNER became traveller for Messrs. R. WILSON and Co. (He was a relative by marriage of the senior partner.) Recently Mr.

BREMNER began business on his own account in Dunedin as a tea merchant. He was a very popular man and highly esteemed by all who knew him, as he deserved to be. Courteous to everybody, straightforward and dependable, a good husband, father, friend, and business man, he was entitled to the esteem he enjoyed. The cause of death was heart disease, and for some days his sufferings were very keen. He was, however, of a courageous, uncomplaining nature, and he bore with Christian patience what came to him. His widow and family, which is a large one, have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends."

"Obituary"

"The death of an old ex-Naseby resident, Mr. John Gauld BREMNER, took place at his residence, Kew, Caversham, on May 28th; he was in his 79th year."

"Referring to the event, the Star says:--"

"Regret will be felt by many throughout Otago at the death of Mr. John G. BREMNER, which took place last night at his residence, Kew. Born at Kennethmont, Scotland in July, 1836, Mr. BREMNER arrived in Adelaide with his widowed mother and brothers and sister in 1852. For a time he and his late brothers Joseph and Robert engaged in contract work for the South Australian Government Railway Department, and worked on the first railway formation brought into Adelaide. But the lure of the goldfields proved too strong for the young men, and they set off for Victoria, and followed the different rushes, with no marked success, however, Mr. BREMNER, when in a reminiscent mood, was wont to say that he would not have missed those days for any wealth, Later, in conjunction with his brothers, he carried on a hay and corn business in Inglewood, till the discovery of gold in Otago set them on the move for New Zealand. Arriving in Dunedin and getting an outfit together, they set out for Central Otago, and the brothers started business as general storekeepers, with head quarters in Naseby and branches in most of the surrounding centres of mining activity."

"In 1870 the deceased married a sister of the late Mr. Robert WILSON of this City. Shortly after he dissolved partnership with his brothers and took a business in Tapanui in partnership with the late Mr. WASHER. In 1885 he settled with his family in Dunedin and for a number of years represented several well-known Dunedin houses on the goldfields. Nine years ago he lost his wife by death and since then failing health compelled him to give up active work. For a time he was president of the Maniototo Early Settlers Association and was at one time a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity. He leaves five daughters and two sons."

"We may add that Mr. BREMNER always maintained a lingering affection for this district, and was a strong believer in its future as a gold-producer. In a series of articles he recently wrote to this paper he gave a very lucid description of his opinion of the geological formation of the district, and a very interesting and valuable historical record of its early days."
