Dundee Courier, Saturday 15th April 1882

"Alleged Wilful Fire-Raising in Edinburgh."

" Archibald Brabner, a plasterer, residing at No. 20 Bank Street, Edinburgh was remitted from the Edinburgh City Police Court yesterday -- Baillie Roberts presiding -- charged with willfully breaking a gas bracket in his house, and setting fire to the gas, whereby the pipe was melted and the building put in imminent danger of being burned. About one o'clock yesterday morning, two detective officers who were in Bank Street observed the reflection of fire in one of the windows of Brabner's house. They entered the house, and found the gas bracket torn away, and the escaping gas on fire. They sent for the fire brigade, and the flames were extinguished before much damage was done. Brabner was found in an adjoining apartment, and was taken into custody."
