New Zealand Truth, article, 31 MAY 1919

"BREMNER vs. BREMNER"

"Having disposed of all the male petitions, his Honor settled down to hear what the female chaser had to say. The first was Florence Mabel BREMNER who, with Lawyer HANLON in charge of the leading strings, had little difficulty in persuading the court that Andrew Walker BREMNER had forfeited the right to call the petitioner "missus".

"Florence Mabel was tastefully and becomingly garbed, and bore no exterior evidence of that drab influence which leaves its mark upon the majority of deserted wives. Even the court usher was caught up in the meshes of her bewitching personality, as he tumbled all over everybody in his haste to place a flowing bowl of aqua pura before the lady. She, however, never showed the slightest sign of throwing a fit at any stage of the proceedings, and never deigned to take even the tiniest sip from the brimming measure. She, in even, dispassioned accents, told how Andy had led her, smiling to the altar in September, 1903, and how, after three children had come their natural way, he developed an intense dislike to the thing called work."

"Taking the line of least resistance, Andy went to live with Florence Mabel's ma, but ma was inconsiderate enough to voice a complaint regarding what she harshly termed Andy's laziness. In December, 1913, he and Florence Mabel agreed to dissolve partnership, the arrangement being that Andy was to part up 10s a week. But his memory was in close relationship with his love of toil; anyhow, he never paid a "bean", and Florence Mabel had been forced to work during all the intervening years. to keep herself and her children. She had seen her forgetful husband in company with a Miss BYFIELD, and had noticed them going into a house in Clark-street."

"Maud BAYLEY, who came along to put another sprag in Andy's big wheel told the court that Andy brought a woman, whom he called Mrs. BREMNER, along to live at her house. That was two or three weeks before last Christmas. She identified this "Mrs. BREMNER" as the lady whose photo had been put in as being that of Miss BYFIELD. Some time afterward, witness found out that "Mrs. BREMNER" was not Mrs. BREMNER at all, and she asked Andy why he did not get a divorce and marry her. He replied: "My wife can get it. I won't give this woman up."

"Stanley Benjamin BUTLER, a clerk in Mr. HANLON'S office, described how he had gone out to Brooksdale to serve the citation. BREMNER, after expressing regret that he had put the witness to so much trouble to serve him, mentioned that he and Miss BYFIELD had taken a situation as a married couple on the station."

"Decree nisi; custody of the children and costs on the lowest scale."

06 FEB 1920: City Police Court, ordered Andrew o pay 20s a week for support of his two children.

"SLANDER ALLEGED"

"A TREASURER'S BOOKS"

"Christchurch, This Day -- An incident at the October meeting of the Aranui Burgesses' Association resulted in an action for alleged slander which was heard in the Magistrate's Court this morning. The plaintiff, Victor Herbert BREMNER, a schoolmaster, claimed £50 damages from James Taylor DICKIE, a salesman."

"The plaintiff alleged that at the meeting the defendant falsely and maliciously spoke and published of the plaintiff, who was treasure of the social committee, the following words: "If it is any information for you, I have seen Mr. BREMNER's books, and they are not in order." The plaintiff alleged that the defendant laid great stress on the word "not". The case is proceeding."
