Aberdeen Journal - Wednesday, 17th September 1924

" A Prairie Mansion"

" A visit to the fine farm of Mr. J.C.C. BREMNER in the Clover Bar district near Edmonton, whoed (sic) very convincingly what can be done by a pioneer farmer. Thirty-nine years ago Mr. BREMNER came to Alberta by Red River cart, acquired his homestead, built his shack, and started to clear and break up his land. Today modern barns, up-to-date outbuildings, and " a house which would grace a residential corner in a modern city" form the equipment of a flourishing 800 acre farm. Sitting on the veranda at afternoon tea, it was difficult to imagine that one had motored 16 miles into the prairie. The transformation was amazing, yet its record was plainly written. We saw the original ox-cart in which Mr. BREMNER first came to what is now the Bremner district. It lies near the site of the original shack, in a clump of bush, which has grown up around it. It has served its day. Its owner now does his business in a big modern motor car, which can get over the somewhat uneven prairie roads at a pace a good deal faster than the patient oxen pulled this cart across the unbroken prairie. All around was evidence of careful farming and a sense of prosperity and comfort. One minor point, which is not always appreciated on prairie, impressed the Scottish visitors, and that was the care bestowed on all the binders and other farm machinery. All were kept under cover, and not left in the open at the mercy of the weather. When depreciation is considered, such care counts for a good deal."
